

Stay on Brand with Approved Messaging

Easy Access to the Correct Corporate Language

Let's face it, the people who create content in your company have their own writing style. And sometimes they forget, or don't even know, your brand's preferred way to express a concept or idea. This makes it really hard to keep their content aligned to your official corporate language.

Variations in paragraphs or phrases create inconsistencies in your messaging and materials. These differences create confusion, lower the clarity of your content, and potentially increase your translation costs and compliance risks.

Inconsistent messages also lead to more revision rounds, greater editorial expenses, and delayed product releases. And that's only when someone finds the issues.

Approved Messaging from Acrolinx manages your company's approved sentences and paragraphs and makes them easily available to writers, so they can use them correctly in their content.

Approved Messaging enforces consistency and alignment on important texts such as
